sponshillity of public functionaries before the courts for their acts official and son-official. Still we do not suppose that a Spansh constitution would in practice be likely to accretise much more influence, if Highy to accretise much more influence, if an emergency should occur, than the Con-stitution of the United Biasies has done and is doing. The government, after all, will be prestry much what the people, if they have any spirit, may demand that it shall be, and it, like our people, they lose their public manhood, it will be what their po-teniates choose to make it.

ful son, continued as postmaster at Oov-ington. He has just outraged the feelings of the people by removing the postoffice from a central part of the city to the out-shirts to accommodate his own personal convenience. A petition to the Postmaster General requiring that it be removed back has received several thousands of signa-tures. Much better than these removals of the postoffice would, we think, be the re-moval of the postmaster. But what not-

The whole population of Othe is less than a million and a half. The census of 1862, compiled by the government, gives the figures at—white, 784,780, free colored, 281,417; and slave, 573,071; total, 1,809,388. The population is believed not to have increased much since 1862, the success of births over deaths of the white and free colored races being fully counterbalanced or swu more than counterbalanced by the decrease of the slaves. Frans Schubert,

Whether Schubert, symphonies and operas are published and performed now or twenty years later, is not of much importance to this fame. He can sfrord to wait. They will assuredly be done some day or other, and then the world will find out, what it has lest by waiting so long, and wooder that it dis not recognise its jewel sooner.
